The attachments "A" and "B" show border defenses and disposition of troop units in the Eisendorf (N50/P 52)-Haselbach (N50/P 60)-Ronsberg (N50/P 61) triangle. Map references in these attachments are those to the Czech Army maps of Primda 4149 and Klonec pod Gerchovem 4249.

Attachment "A" shows the disposition of the 64th Infantry Regiment, locations of ammunition and supply depots, and border defense sites which are under construction. Main defense points are at Eisendorf, Ploess (Pless, Ples - N50/P 51), and Mytnice (Mauthaus - N50/P 60). Machine gun positions are in the area of Eisendorf, Svarcava (Schwarzach - N50/P 51), and Grafenried (N50/P 50). The roads marked on the overlay are the main supply routes used to service the defense positions.

- a. Headquarters of the 64th Infantry Regiment is at Ronsperg.
- b. Observation towers are indicated by triangles.
- c. The main defense line is marked by a broken line, interspersed with circles which represent SNB observation posts. Persons crossing this line heading towards the border may be fired upon after one challenge.

- d. The numbered (1 to 19) circles on the border represent border lookout posts which provide good observation into Bavaria. Posts are manned by members of the Customs Guard who also patrol the area around these posts.
4. Attachment "B" is an overlay showing the border defense sites in more detail. The sites to be manned in case of an alert and those to be occupied in the event of an emergency are also indicated on this overlay.
5. Attachment "C" shows the radio communication net operated by the Army and the SNB (top diagram), and the telephone lines operated by the Czech Post and the SNB (bottom diagram). In the top diagram, broken lines indicate the Army radio net and continuous lines the SNB net, while the bottom diagram shows the wires operated by the Czech Post as solid lines and those operated by the SNB as broken lines.
6. Attachment "D" lists and gives the exact locations of the observation posts shown in Attachment "A" and defines the boats of Customs Guard and SNB patrols.
